THE LIBERAL PROGRAMME.

Toronto Week: The liberal premier has been announcing his programme. The topics relating to domestic matters dealt with by him are: 1. A reform of the tariff. On this point Mr. Laurier says: "I declare on this occasion that we will proceed with caution in order not to injure the established interests. Such is the programme of the liberal party. We are to have a session on the 18th of August, but it will be very short. We will vote the budget and nothing more. There will be no legislation. We will provide for the public expenditure, nothing more. The changes in the tariff will be deferred to the new session, which will be held in January or February. Until then, what shall we do? We shall communicate with the managers of industries, manufactures, etc., and together we shall elaborate a fiscal policy which will be of a nature to lighten the burden of taxes which lie upon this country." 2. The interests of Agriculture. "It is not for any government to raise the price of your farm products, but we can reduce the price of what you must purchase for your consumption. That is what we want to do. We can also facilitate the sale of your products by establishing rapid transit and facilitating communication with European markets, and this we will do before long." 3. Development of the Northwest. "What we want to do is to increase the population and thus decrease your expenses, and to attain that end we shall develop the Northwest." 4. Settlement of the Manitoba school question. "I only want six months in which to settle the question, and, if I am not mistaken, before that time is over the question will be settled without exciting the prejudices of anybody and rendering justice to whom justice is due." This domestic programme, if carried out, will put Mr. Laurier on the topmost pinnacle of success. He will, if he succeeds in his anticipations, earn the undying gratitude of Canada.

As our foreign relations Mr. Laurier speaks as follows: 1. With England—"Another plank of our platform to which I draw your attention is our relation with Old England. Our party has always been represented on the other side as a party of rebels, who would try to break all colonial ties. I am of the French race, like yourselves, but I do not hesitate to declare that I am a loyal subject of Her Majesty. This is a free country, and it is because we are a free people that we are loyal subjects. Fifty years ago our fathers went to arms to fight and die for their liberty and their rights. If I had been living then I, perhaps, would have done the same, but I am not living in 1837. We are now in 1896, and if we have the rights of all British subjects we also have the same responsibilities. But from a commercial standpoint our relations might be better. The English market is open to all of the nations of the world on equal footing. It might be possible to obtain from England a preferential treaty which would be exclusively for our products."

A NEW ERA.

Robert McQueen, a brother of Rev. D. G. McQueen, has a six column article in the Dundas Banner on Canadian affairs, which is a retrospect of the political situation. As to the lessons of the elections he says:

What are some of the teachings of the late elections?

(1) That we err if we consider the victory as purely a liberal triumph. It is a triumph for the liberals, but a large number of conservatives cast their ballots in opposition to the government, which, while it claimed to represent that party, has so far departed from the traditions of its best days that they refused to support them any longer. They put the welfare of their country before party traditions, they felt that it was time they had a change and they voted for it. There were others, and many of them, who never voted liberal in their lives, who, wishing to preserve their traditions of loyalty to their party, refrained from voting altogether. The victory has been achieved by the alliance of the best men of all parties, and for that reason, affords deeper cause for gratitude, and firmer ground of hope for the future of our country.

(2) Our fellow citizens of the province of Quebec have given unmistakable evidence of the determination to assert their right to liberty of conscience and the exercise of private judgment in their use of the franchise.

Their action in the late contest is a rebuke to those who have hitherto looked upon them and spoken of them as being completely under the control of their spiritual leaders and without any fixed political principles which they dared to exercise according to the convictions of their consciences, or their judgment of what was expedient in the management of the public affairs of the country. That fact, taken together with the surrendering of purely party ties and the alliance of the best men of all parties in the other provinces, especially in Ontario, opens up a new era in the political life of the Dominion, and one full of hope for the drawing more closely together and completely unifying the various elements of the population of our common country, with the common object of lifting the whole conduct of our public affairs into a higher plane of moral practice and into a purer atmosphere of political morality; and as the men in office are simply the reflex of those who place them there, the responsibility for bringing about that better state of things rests with the people themselves, rests with, and devolves upon each individual elector in the Dominion.

And while aside from all other matters claiming the attention of the government, matters of industrial or commercial, concern or the development of our resources, the whole departmental management of affairs at the capital need a thorough investigation and renovation. It might be necessary to appoint a commission with the most ample powers and unlimited time, to overhaul and examine into the past management and present condition of the civil service in all its ramifications exposing wrongdoing wherever it is found, fixing blame and inflicting punishment wherever it is deserved, removing and dismissing all useless and incompetent officials, not only in spirit of retaliation or harshness, but in the very opposite, but at the same time to reduce the number of officials and cost of administration to the lowest point consistent with the efficient conduct of the affairs of the country, in all its departments and every relation.

And if the government is to do this efficiently and successfully, then it must be sustained and upheld by those who have entrusted them with the management of their affairs. must know that it has behind it the moral support and active sympathy of the people of this country not only in dismissing the useless or incompetent, but in refusing to appoint those who are not needed, those who think that it is their turn to get an office now, that the other fellows are out and they ought to get in. Any government who will refuse to grant the demands of such a class, will be sure to make enemies. But the government that has the moral courage to adhere to the right in opposition to such demands is the one that merits the cordial support of every well wisher of this country.

The real battle for purity and integrity of administration has only begun, and just as surely as what has been achieved is the result of determined effort and severe conflict, so surely must these efforts be continued and that conflict waged if we are to maintain and establish what has already been secured; the power to do so is in the hands of the people and on them rests the responsibility.

IN THE FAR NORTH.

Free Press: From sunrise till sunset over snow clad ridges and into the intervening gullies over stretches of frozen marsh, and through thick growths of timber, spruce, poplar and cotton wood the missionary of the far north makes his pastoral journeys. When darkness puts an end to further advance he clears a small space of ground from snow, covers the bottom with spruce brush, kindles a fire at one end, rolls himself in his blanket, and thus spends the long and lonely vigils of the night. Sometime in the second day of this journey, perhaps, a snowshoe track would be found and followed up until it leads to a tent. Here is an Indian and family encamped in the snow, and either revelling in full plenty of moose steaks and venison, or, as is more likely the case, without a particle of food in sight and with no sure prospect of any. The missionary is always welcome, for he is minister, doctor and friend to all. He shares his small supply of provisions for he has to carry with him enough for his own wants during the trip, not because the Indian is inhospitable—he is always ready to share what he has—but from the fact that there may not be a meal in the whole round of his visits, assists them in whatever way he can and pushes on to the next camp.

This is the life of a missionary among the Indians in the far north, as given to a Free Press reporter yesterday by Rev. Malcolm Scott, of Vermillion, Peace River, Athabasca. Stripped of all the romance with which Ballantyne and other writers of fiction have clothed it, Ver-million river is, roughly speaking 700 miles north of Edmonton, but is really much farther, as can be seen by the history of Mr. Scott's trip down. He left there on the 18th of May, and after paddling 400 miles up the Peace river to Smoky river, he crossed to Lesser Slave lake, a distance of 100 miles on foot. Two hundred across the Lesser Slave Lake and up the Lesser Slave river brought him to Athabasca Landing, and the journey from there to Edmonton was made in a freighter's wagon. The Peace river country will, after the vast stretches intervening have been settled, make good farming land, all grains, including wheat, being successfully grown there now, especially the last two years, and no failures have been reported. There is a market for the Indians and H. B. company for all the produce the settlers raise, home made flour being worth $7 per sack. The imported article sells from $12 to $16 a sack. The Indian population about Vermillion river consists of about 500 Beavers and 200 Crees, and these gain a living by hunting and trapping. Years when rabbits and large game are plentiful the Indian's lot is not so bad, when both of these fail, he starves. A winter's catch for an Indian is between 200 and 1,500 skins. "Skin-way" is a term used to designate a certain value in fur, originally that of beaver, but of course now much changed. A beaver is now valued at six to eighteen skins, a marten three to five skins, a bear from twenty to forty skins, and a silver fox, if a good one, will be worth 200 skins. On the other hand two skins will buy a pound of tea or four yards of print; and ten skins a blanket. The output of that single fur in a year would be over 4,000 marten skins.

Mr. Scott returns to his charge immediately after the general synod meeting, which will be held early in September, taking with him his son and daughter, who have been attending school in the city for some time.

The following election protests have been filed in Toronto on behalf of the liberal party against conservative members-elect: Beattie, London; Maclean, East York; Craig, East Durham; McGillivray, North Ontario; McNeil, North Bruce; Bennett, East Simcoe; Henry, South Brant; Cochran, East Northumberland; Oiler and Clarke, West Toronto. This makes ten in all. Postmaster-general Mulock, liberal Whip Sutherland, and liberal organizer A. Smith were present representing the liberal party. In East York and North Ontario the liberal candidates claim the seats, and the personal disqualification of the members elect is asked in every case. In addition to the usual charges in the case of South Brant, the charge is made that marked fraudulent ballots were used as a means of showing how the purchased votes were cast.

PORT SASKATCHEWAN.

The weather has been very unsettled the past week, and very unfavorable for hay making, being wet and showery with heavy local thunderstorms. Considerable hail fell at Deep Creek yesterday. Barley has been cut by some of the farmers already.

Frank Oliver, M. P., and family were at the Mansion House this week and drove through the settlement visiting his host of friends. While in the Port he promised to do what was possible with a view of establishing a free ferry at this point. Our M. L. A. has taken the matter up and will do all that is possible to assist the matter to a successful issue.

Miss Bush and Stacy have been visiting friends at the Port the past week. During the holidays the school house had been painted inside and out giving it a much improved appearance and reflecting credit on the contractor, Wm. Sullivan.

August 6, 1896.

RED DEER.

The rain of the past week has made it very bad for hay making and there is a large quantity on the ground which will be hard to save. If this weather had come six weeks ago it would have given the crops a different appearance.

Mr. Alexander, of the immigration service, stayed off here last week and drove out into the country to find out what amount of damage the frost had done, and he found that although some of the potatoes were cut down, there was little or no damage done to the grain crop. He secured some splendid cauliflower and other vegetables from the garden of Mr. McNicol.

Cherish Anass was brought in to the police on Tuesday from Buffalo lake under charge of stealing cattle from Mr. Page, of Pine Lake.

Mrs. Burch returned home on Monday's train from a trip through the Kootenay country. She was very much delighted with her trip, and reports money very plentiful all through that country. Mr. Burch is expected back by to-day's train.

A Carey will ship a carload of stock to Revelstoke by Tuesday's train.

Mr. Simpson, our M. L. A., visited us last week.

August 6, 1896.

DEEP CREEK.

The crops are very promising. Wheat will be a very good crop, oats and barley very fair, potatoes excellent, garden stuff immense.

Haying is in full blast now and plenty of it.

Our M. L. A., Mr. Tims, is having a road graded from Beaver Creek to the Port. Mr. H. Irwin is superintendent and we are certain of a good road as what he has done shows he understands the business.

Mr. Fluker will buy a harvester and binder this season, he having crops to warrant it. He may cut for some of his neighbors who are not so fortunate as to have a machine.

Our school opens again on the 10th August. Mr. Janier at the helm, Mr. Ferguson, South Edmonton, preaches for us every two weeks, also Mr. Whiteside.

Our German neighbors are getting along nicely with their church building, which is 50 x 32 and will be fixed very comfortably inside and has a very fine appearance outside. They appear to be all mechanics, blacksmiths, wagon makers, basket makers, &c.

We have sent in a petition for a post office, which is much needed as we have a large settlement who would patronize it. We have heard nothing of it lately.

The Kootenay country is causing quite an excitement, and a few are talking of looking over that district. I say stay by the farm, riches are far in the future and a hard race.

August 3, 1896.

GENERAL NEWS.

Referring to the crop outlook in Manitoba the Commercial says: The weather has continued favorable this week and crop reports are somewhat improved, compared with two or three weeks ago, but the general condition is comparatively the same as noted last week in our more extended report. There are some very fine crops in some districts, and other sections will average small yield. In about ten days with favorable weather, a few early patches of grain will be ready to cut in some districts. We have heard of one or two patches of rye or barley having been cut this week, but they may have been cut for feed, as has been the case with some extra early cutting in past years. At any rate, the harvest will begin for two or three weeks yet.

A London telegram Aug. 4th, says: The report of the labor department of the government board of trade for the month ending July 15, demonstrates that, despite the crockers, hard times across the water are rapidly becoming a thing of the past, and prosperous conditions are prevailing in proportion. An abstract of the report, which is very voluminous, shows that during the month in question 43,000 wageworkers were affected by changes in rates of wages, in which 40,000 obtained increases and 3,000 sustained decreases. The estimated effect of all the changes was an aggregate advance of about 20 cents on the dollar in the wages of the total number affected. 5,000 iron and steel workers, 18,000 mechanics in the engineering and ship-building industries, 9,000 workmen in other branches of the metal trades, and 4,000 building operators obtained increases. The principal reductions affected 2,000 blast furnace men in the north of England. The report goes on to say that in most industries the state of employment continues very good, and that the percentage of unemployed in the various trade unions was but 3.2 per cent, as against 5.6 per cent for the same period of last year.

Li Hung Chang, representing the Emperor of China arrived at Southampton from Havre and was received by various officials of the British government and amongst others by the manager of the American steamship line. The distinguished Chinese visitor proceeded directly to London, where he was installed in Lord Lansdowne's magnificent mansion in Carlton House Terrace, which is to be his residence during his visit in England, which is expected to last about a month. Li Hung Chang is the guest of the British government during his stay in England and at its conclusion his plan is to sail for the United States.

Toronto, Aug. 4.—There is one part of the decision of the privy council on the powers of provinces to regulate the liquor traffic, which is beyond question. The council decided that the local option law was within the authority of the province, and already action has been taken by the Ontario government. A few days ago the government decided in council to issue new instructions to license commissioners in the different counties on account of this decision. The point of these instructions is that if any municipalities in the districts of the commissioners have enacted local option by laws the commissioners must cancel all licenses. Hitherto taverns have continued running in spite of local option by-laws, and no fines were imposed owing to the uncertainty of the law. Already all taverns in some townships have been closed.—Winnipeg Tribune.

A Havana, despatch of Aug. 4th, says: The brigadier general, Echague, with 700 reinforcements, arrived by transatlantic mail steamer Catalina from Spain yesterday. The same vessel brought a quantity of munition of war and $1,000,000 in silver assigned to the captain general. Prisoners of war, Antonio Pena Lopez, insurgent lieutenant, and Mariano Rodriguez Lopez, a private, recently court-martialed, were shot in the Havana fortress here at sunrise this morning. Another prisoner from Santiago, Nunez Bravo, a rebel prefect, was shot at Santo Domingo yesterday. The bishop of Havana, in co-operation with the mayor, the press and various local institutions, is arranging to open, under the direction of the Sisters of Charity, lunch counters to relieve the starving poor in the streets. Yellow fever and smallpox are increasing in Havana, Guanabacoa, Matanzas and Santa Clara.
